Dear Elmer:

I have discussed with Dr. Seligman the procedure that we might follow concerning searches in the Long-Par case. We think that the components in the apparatus may be more stabilized in four to six weeks. Therefore, we believe it would be well to postpone an infringement search until that time. However, we think that you should go ahead now with the preliminary patentability search. By the middle of April, we will discuss again the infringement search.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Thelma G. Heatwole
Patent Liaison Officer
